HUNGRY FOR GOD

by Mike Jones

Everyone in the packed full little grass roofed church, including the children, is sitting on the edge of their seat (log), stretching out their necks as if straining to hear every word. Its extremely hot this time of the year. I doubt if there is anyone having ever seen an air conditioner. In rural places like this, people lay out-side on the ground at night, trying to get cool enough to sleep. Yet, not even a small child is dozing in church. I'm very sure it's not because of my "great preaching". The story I was telling from the Book of Joel chapters one and two was their story, I could see the Holy Spirit moving through the congregation, anointing them. The young man playing the home-made goat skin drum (he was really good) testified that he came to church sick, but God healed him. I could see dreams and visions being "stirred up" inside the majority of the congregation. As far as I could see, everyone leaving the church departed free from sickness and disease.

We are expecting this Christmas to be the greatest for the precious orphaned children we have been blessed to have in our homes (our partners gave what was needed to build and provide). My wife has a great surprise for them. She has been sewing new dresses for the girls. I don't think they have ever in their young lives put on a new dress. And they are truly beautiful! I should have pictures when they are given. The boys aren't very interested in clothes, and I'm not much on sewing, so they will get something more desirable to them.

Our School of Ministry (MOT-MOT) classes are currently deep in the rural areas, where growing maize physically sustains them. We are seriously praying for good rains in good time. The predictions for rain this growing season have been low. The rainy season has begun with little precipitation. The classes are amazing, with God's presence manifested powerfully. Churches are being planted and are growing. Often, I arrive at a church and find the pastor with his Bible and a syllabus from MOT-MOT. I can't tell you how many preachers get their outlines from MOT-MOT, but the number is surely big. The multiplication, as envisioned by the anointed author, will continue until the final judgment. It is happening because of your generous partnership with this ministry.

I have read and heard of missionaries ending up discouraged, turning back to where they came from with practically nothing to show for years on the mission field, even turning against God and missions. I want to tell them, maybe you can tell them, come and walk with me. You'll see the greatest miracle, which is salvation, going from spiritual death to spiritual life. This greatest miracle is the hardest to prove, since it is a spiritual thing. Come and see the blind receive their sight, and the deaf hear, and the lame walk, the dead raised, those possessed and oppressed of the devil set free. See one of the poorest nations in Africa, few owning a bicycle, become a place where major cities have traffic jams. And the people own their cars, and many own their brick houses debt free. I heard one of these defeated missionaries from another continent say, "The people are happy and can not be helped by the gospel of Jesus Christ" speaking of people so full of fear, they can't even face a friendly unarmed stranger.

Fear has gripped big chunks of the world. Where faith in God is weak, fear is strong. Fear is a robber. Fear will drive you into making a wrong decision, forgetting God because faith in Him fled away when fear was allowed in.

This is the time of the year when we Christians that know the Creator must be more steadfast than ever to boldly share our testimony, "Jesus is the answer for the world today!" Like the song says, "Without Him there's no other, Jesus is the way." If we don't have answers for the naysayers, we don't really know Jesus Christ like we should. The Savior is born! Everyone, including the most isolated tribes of people, "hear" voices. Not all voices are received, but they have no choice until we give voice to The Word of God through prayer and going ourselves and opening our mouths, and supporting through partnerships people like us that go and give the love of God in various ways. Hear the Lord's voice today and come with us. Remain Faithful,
